Community leaders are presented annual impact review by NASA

BY JACQUI COCHRAN
Community leaders were presented an optimistic overview Tuesday by NASA representatives during the annual Community Leaders Briefing at John C. Stennis Space Center.

Because of Stennis' existence, it was estimated as of 1991 within a 50-mile radius, 14,698 direct and indirect local jobs exist. The total economic impact is approximately $257.3 million a year.

Employment at Stennis is estimated to be more than 4,100. Of that number, 20 percent are Hancock County residents, just under St. Tammany Parish, La. with 21 percent. Harrison County claims 22 percent and Pearl River County, 28 percent.

More than one-third of SSC's work force is from scientific and engineering fields. Technicians, crafts and production represent 27 percent, while 15 percent is clerical and 12 percent business related.

NAVOCEANO
NASA and the Navy's Oceanographic Center are SSC's largest employers, each estimated to employ 36 percent of the total base work force.

At Stennis, in 1991, NASA pumped $94.2 million into salaries and services while NAVOCEANO paid out $92.2 million.

Admiral John Chubb, director of the Naval Oceanographic

Command stated the Stennis facility is headquarters to 65 oceanographic commands stationed worldwide.

He said the Stennis command employs 1,876 people, making it the third largest employer on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and 40 percent of these people live in Hancock County.

Chubb added Stennis NAVOCEANO contained the largest concentration of oceanographers and most complete oceanographic library in the world.

He said the Supercomputer was the largest in the Navy and more powerful than all other computers in the Navy combined.

NASA

According to NASA director Roy Estess, the National Aeronautics and Space Agency is moving full speed ahead in its pursuit of the stars.

According to Estess, NASA at Stennis is no longer interested in being the largest and best test facility in the United States. Under directive by newly appointed agency administrator Daniel Golden, he said, Stennis will contain the best testing facility of large propulsion systems and components in the world.

With this expanded view, Estess described four current and future programs.

The first, current space shuttle main engine testing is estimated at 80-100 per year.

Second, the controversial Advanced Solid Rocket Motor (ASRM) which still remains to receive funding by Congress.

Estess reported one-half billion dollars is needed to keep the program on schedule.

He added NASA is continuing with work on the test site facility at Stennis under the belief that funding for the project would be approved by Congress. At this time construction on the test platform is beginning, with water tributaries and road beds now completed.

Ban on burning issued in county

BY JANET MCQUEEN

Fire Marshal Jay Marsh has issued a ban on burning in Hancock County, stating the lack of rainfall in the area has resulted in dangerously dry conditions.

"Until the county logs at least an inch of rainfall," Marsh said, "there will be no burning allowed. We lost a structure in Shoreline Park Sunday night."

As of Tuesday, parts of the county had recorded only .17 of an inch of rainfall, although Bay St. Louis collected more than an inch.

For additional information, contact the Hancock County Forestry Commission at the firetower, 255-7152, or Marsh at 466-4709.

Arvine Garcia stands amidst bricks which once were his chimney

Lightning strikes twice at Lakeshore residence

BY T. H. (DOC) TOUPS

The heavy thunderstorms which battered much of Hancock County's coastal area Sunday afternoon exacted a "shocking" toll on the Lakeshore residence of Arvine J. Garcia.

Garcia said he was napping in his Lower Bay Road home when two storms passed overhead. The first storm passed uneventfully and he went back to sleep. As he dozed, the second storm approached, bringing millions of volts of destructive energy in its highly-charged clouds.

Suddenly, a massive lightning bolt struck the Garcia home. "It woke me up out of a dead sleep," Garcia said. "I jumped out of bed and hit the floor!"

The lightning destroyed the entire top of the fireplace chimney, leaving rubble scattered around one side of the house. The part of the masonry structure still standing was left with large cracks, running down to the foundation.

Garcia said last spring, he was standing in his yard with a friend, near a metal stock trailer. Lightning struck the trailer, throwing both men to the ground. "I'm getting pretty scared," he said. "Now when the weather gets bad, I get inside."

Auditors okay city finances

BY TRACI BONNEY

According to the experts, Bay St. Louis is in good financial shape.

Steve Dockins, of the accounting firm Moore & Powell, highlighted for the City Council last week the findings of the city's 1991 fiscal year audit.

Dockins said the city's reserves are consistent with their holdings in FY '90. The general fund has a reserve of about three months in cash and investments, and the utility fund has an eight-month reserve.

All the city's general obligation bonds have been paid, which Dockins said gives the city a debt bonding capacity, or legal debt margin, of $4,285,000. The utility fund has $1,870,000 outstanding in revenue bonds, which is about average for a city utility system, he added.

Few arrests over weekend

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Memorial Day weekend was relatively quiet for local law officers, according to reports from the Sheriff's Department and both police departments.

Detective David Parker said the only felony arrests in Bay St. Louis over the weekend involved three Gulfport men apprehended on charges of simple possession of marijuana and carrying a concealed weapon.

Parker said three men were arrested Sunday evening after a motorist flagged down Officer Jim Martin and told him three men in a blue Chevrolet had pointed a gun at him as he passed them.

Martin and Officer Bob Pease apprehended the men at the intersection of Hwy. 90 and North Second Street as they were eastbound. A search of the vehicle revealed a small amount of marijuana, drug paraphernalia, a 9mm pistol, a set of brass knuckles, a pellet gun and $1,175 in cash.

Arrested were Brent Jones, 18, Kevin Potts, 22, and Terry Price, 23, all of Gulfport. Price, who has a previous conviction, was released from the Hancock

SENIOR CITIZEN HAPPENINGS

20+ YEARS!

Imagine! 20 years for three of us! When I was hired in February of 1972 to open an office to work with and for senior citizens, the first person I hired was Rosine Jushaway, and the first volunteer was Carl Baldenhofer (Senior Citizen of the Year). We are still together doing the same thing and loving every minute of it. We hope we made a difference.

The Human Resource Board and the Center staff honored the three of us at a beautiful party at the Center with many friends, guests, and gifts. We wish to thank you all for your show of friendship and appreciation. Thanks a million, HRA Board—Center staff, city and county officials, friends and all of you senior citizens it has been our privilege to serve.

Testing Goodwill's goodwill

The Bay St. Louis Goodwill Store is receiving more than well meaning donations. Employee Paul Shubert directs attention to two piles of unusable items, including household garbage, left over the weekend. Store manager Avis Morreale stated, "People leave things here every night to a certain extent. The majority of the dumping is over the weekends. Goodwill no longer accepts large appliances. About the largest appliance we accept is a vacuum cleaner. Clothing left over night is usually ruined by the time we open in the morning. People sort through them and scatter them, leaving everything out in the weather. Any donations should be made during store hours, Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m." (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

Chamber declares Beach Front Festival a success

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Hancock County Chamber of Commerce director Cindy Vernon reported the 1992 Beach Front Festival to be a profitable one.

Vernon said, "From my preliminary review, both income and expenses are about the same as in previous years."

"Comparatively speaking, the attendance was down a little bit from 1989-1991. Paid attendance was 32,000, which is about the same as the previous year of 1991.

"I definitely feel it was a success."

She commented, prior to changing the annual event from a Sunday to a Saturday, the chamber conducted a survey of downtown businesses for input.

"Of all the downtown merchants we contacted," she said, "easily, 80 percent were in favor of holding the festival on a Saturday. From the retailer's point of view, Saturday should prove to be the better day."

She stated there was little indication as to whether the lack of an appearance by a large name band had any effect upon this year's attendance.

"There are so many outside factors involved in the success of the event," Vernon added, "it is impossible to judge if any one thing could have added to or taken from attendance."

"I know the publicity was not there this year, and then there is the fact that the economy is bad."

County jail on a bond of $10,000; Jones and Potts were released on bonds of $1,000 each.

Parker said a few domestic quarrels were the only other incidents reported from the holiday weekend.

Sheriff Ronald Peterson said his department had a few DUI and public drunk arrests, but no felony arrests.

"It was an extraordinarily quiet weekend," he commented.

Waveland Police Chief James Varnell reported one burglary over the long weekend.

He said Charles Wesley Bruns III, 31, of 603 Dufour Road, Waveland, was arrested Monday at 1:02 a.m. at Wilcox Laundry on Waveland Avenue. Officer Thomas Antoine noticed that a window had been removed, investigated and discovered Bruns in the building.

Varnell said Bruns was in the Hancock County jail Wednesday in lieu of a $1,000 bond. Investigator Dave Stepro is in charge of the case.

EDITORIAL

Is patriotism on the decline?

What a difference one year can make in the feelings and actions of Americans. How we forget ever so fast. On Memorial Day and other occasions in 1991, there were many patriotic parades and gatherings. As World War II came to an end, 'flag waving' was up to par with the defeat of Japan and Germany.

Memorial Day 1992 was recognized by only a few. Memorial Day is a time to remember those who gave their lives for their country; and the blood shed has been tremendous over the years.

Some 406,000 Americans lost their lives in World War II; 55,000 during the Korean Conflict; over 58,000 in Vietnam, and most recently, 384 were killed in the Persian Gulf in 1991.

This does not include the many Americans who were wounded and scarred for life, physically and emotionally.

We pose this question, 'Do we give these Americans who gave their all' for their country, proper respect by not observing Memorial Day?

These Americans and those before them were sons, daughters, grandsons, granddaughters, grandfathers, uncles, aunts, brothers, sisters, etc. of Americans and are responsible for the freedoms we enjoy today.

Classes in our local schools were held on Memorial Day, just as if it were any other day. Wouldn't it be more educational if students were permitted to participate in Memorial Day activities?

The Bay St. Louis and Waveland American Legion Posts both held ceremonies to commemorate those who gave their lives for a free America. They would welcome the participation of our students and other citizens in the future.

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

Mississippi's Guard and Reserves vital to nation's defense

The Pentagon recently recommended the disbanding of several of South Mississippi's National Guard and reserve units to facilitate the Department of Defense's overall plan to reduce U.S. military personnel strength. If Congress approves the cuts, more than 700 South Mississippi National Guard and reservists would be put out of uniform.

I believe the Pentagon is making a terrible mistake. The 305th Field Hospital, Gulfport; 786th Medium Truck Company, Lucedale; 624th POL Supply Company, Waynesboro; and Craft of Opportunity Program Mine Unit 2212, Gulfport, provide outstanding cost-effective long-term training.

In my opinion we should not cut National Guard and reserve strength levels at this time and I plan to do what I can in Congress to prevent it.

Guard and reserve units are vital to both our nation's defense and the communities in which units call home. The National Guard and reserve are a source of local pride as well as a source of jobs.

At a time when our nation is trying to pull itself out of a recession, closing armories is not the answer. It costs much less to maintain a National Guard or reserve unit than it does an active duty unit performing the same mission. Shifting more of these missions to Reserve components is a benefit to the taxpayer and the Department of Defense.

I have fought deep cuts in the Guard and reserves in the past and I will continue to fight them in the future. I see no reason to cut out a program that not only protects the defense of our nation but at the same time is a bargain for taxpayers.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It will be a full day of baseball in Bay St. Louis on Saturday with the opening of the Bay St. Louis Parks & Playgrounds Summer Baseball program.

Festivities get underway with a parade and opening ceremonies at 9:45 a.m.

This will be followed by seven games of baseball beginning at 10:30 a.m.

Our youth have been practicing and getting ready for this big season of baseball.

We do not want to forget the coaches and managers of these teams, those who donate their time and talents so the youth can enjoy baseball.

This too is the time of year when many of our youngsters will be walking and riding bicycles back and forth to games.

Motorists need to keep a sharp eye out as the boys and girls sometimes are thinking about baseball instead of traffic.

Our youth want to enjoy a summer of fun, and I am hoping all will have a safe summer.

Best of luck to each and every ball player.

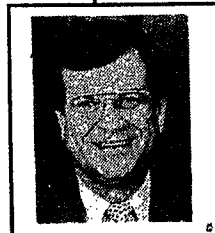

Do not forget the fund-raising auction Saturday night for the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

It will be held at the National Guard Armory, Longfellow Road, beginning at 6 p.m.

There will be all types of items up for auction, and I understand some are real values.

If you would like to donate some item or items, give a call to Shorty Necaise Jr., auction chairman at 467-7717.

This is another fund-raising project sponsored by the Waveland Civic Association.

FROM THE SENATE

By Senator Trent Lott

Trimming down the giant

I met with President Bush in March to discuss his proposed cuts, or rescissions, of federal spending for programs and projects that he deemed unnecessary. I am supporting the President's effort to cut these programs and projects to create savings.

The rescissions are designed to get the federal deficit down, the budget in place and the Congress to start acting fiscally responsible. This would be accomplished by cutting wasteful spending which is not part of the President's budget or was earmarked in appropriations during the 11th hour.

Quite frankly, the rescissions are aimed at many projects which are just plain foolish and a waste of both time and money. The President has selected 68 spending projects and programs which, if cut, will save $3.6 billion in fiscal year 1992. And, the administration has suggested that as many as 1,000 more projects and programs could follow.

Cutting some of these programs and projects will not be a sacrifice in the least. The President has suggested cutting $2 million from a Hawaiian arts and crafts promotion program. I say good riddance.

Others include:

- Agriculture
- Blackbird control project, $100,000;
- Seedless table grape juice research, $100,000;
- Small fruit research in Oregon, $200,000;
- Mink feeding and reproduction research, $46,000;

We all have to make concessions to get this country back to where it needs to be financially, and a step in that direction is the cutting out of wasteful and irresponsible spending by the federal government.

It's always difficult to take something away once it's been given, but we have to take away the programs and projects which have born this big, toothless giant of deficit which the Congress has created.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Voters to have chance to plug loophole on felons

At last, the people next November are going to get a crack at amending the state Constitution and plugging the loophole that has allowed Mississippi politicians convicted of federal felony crimes to again run for office once their jail term is up.

The 1992 Legislature finally did what other legislative sessions for the past six years have failed to do: It approved a resolution putting on the general election ballot a proposed amendment to Section 44 to specifically include federal felony convictions as a bar to holding public office.

Under the existing Section 44, anyone convicted of such crimes as bribery, perjury "or other infamous crime" is disqualified upon conviction from holding public office.

But the fly in the ointment is that the state Supreme Court in a ruling back in 1960 held that Section 44 only meant state crimes and not federal crimes.

Segregation-conscious lawmakers back in the 60s wouldn't dare touch Section 44 to include federal convictions because they were afraid that some of their favorite Mississippi politicians might run afoul of federal civil rights laws and they didn't want the feds keeping them out of office.

There was even a possibility back then that Gov. Ross Barnett, who became a Mississippi folk hero for his defiance of the federal government in the admission of James Meredith to Ole Miss would be convicted of criminal contempt of the federal courts.

It never happened, however, but Barnett-worshippers in the Legislature wanted to make certain that ole Ross could always run again. The postscript to that story is that when Barnett tried to make a comeback for governor in 1967, his mystique was gone and he was trounced.

Not until 1978 did lawmakers start to get uneasy about the federal felony loophole in Section 44. That was when a powerful state senator, Bill Burgin, became the first Mississippi legislator ever to be indicted and convicted in federal court for selling his legislative influence.

Some feared that Burgin might get elected back to his Senate seat once he had finished his prison sentence. Burgin spared his old colleagues of that agony, but he did try to later win a county office, and lost.

The FBI and the U.S. attorney started picking off a few county officials for taking graft in the early 1980s, and then launched a dramatic sting operation called "Pretense" in 1987 which resulted in the conviction of 57 county supervisors on federal fraud and bribery charges.

Then-state Sen. George Guerieri of Southaven had started in the mid-80s pushing for a constitutional amendment to bar federal felons from office after four of the five supervisors in his home county were convicted of federal charges. His amendment got nowhere at first, but later cleared the Senate only to die in a House committee.

When it became known how a single House member had managed to pigeon hole the measure in the 1988 session, Guerieri remarked that a lot of "people are going to be mad if some of these supervisors (convicted in Pretense) pop up again as county officials."

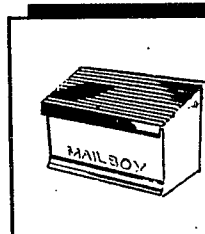

A new cadre of federal felon amendment advocates started emerging in the House in 1989, chiefly Reps. John Reeves and Bill Denny, both of Jackson. They managed to get the measure as far as the House calendar, but couldn't get it to a vote on deadline.

This time, with Reeves sitting in the key spot as chairman of the sub-committee which handled the bill, Reeves and Denny pushed it out on the floor early in March, and for the first time got the House to back it. From there, Sen. Claude Bilbo of Pascagoula steered it through the Senate.

As often is the case in getting legislation through the minefield, some concessions had to be made. One was to remove the provision making it retroactive, applying to anyone convicted in the past. In the final version, it affects only those convicted in the future.

And as always, there was an exemption written into the measure excluding federal violations of the Internal Revenue Code, also for state laws, unless it involved abuse of the individual's office.

Guerieri wasn't sent back to the Legislature this time and wasn't on hand to see his early spade work on the federal felon amendment finally pay off. But he was mighty tickled it did.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Educators' lust for money seems to be insatiable

Dear Editor, They've cried "wolf" once too often!

You'd think by now the public, and especially our elected officials, would realize no amount of money will ever satisfy the Education Bureaucracy... they could easily spend $100 billion more!

But we're living at a time when corporate America has cut back to lean and mean. Through consolidations, plant closings and some layoffs, they've trimmed budgets to be ready for any competition.

Educators, on the other hand, are always trying to create more jobs through smaller classes, which also means more construction for new classrooms; they always want more of everything from buses to computers.

Mention consolidation of schools or school districts to save overhead... they don't want to hear such talk.

And though they claim a shortage of funds to properly educate our children and claim a shorter school year would deprive students of a "quality education," every time school monies are discussed by the Legislature our illustrious school districts declare another paid holiday so teachers may demonstrate in Jackson. Teachers gain — our children lose!

The University Board yelled without new money tuition must be raised again. Lo and behold, the Legislature is giving $36 million of the new 1 percent sales tax to colleges and universities and they're giving everyone on staff a raise AND again are raising tuition to students from 12 percent to 34 percent.

You just can't trust educators, as there's no end to their greed.

Someday I hope the public and politicians recognize this lust to spend more by all bureaucrats must end... especially when the greatest accomplishment is adding to the misery of our poor through regressive taxes.

Think about it — are you getting your money's worth?

Royce P. Kaupp

Common Cause organizes Coast chapter

Common Cause will hold an organizational meeting for a Gulf Coast chapter today, 7 p.m., at the Harrison County courthouse in Gulfport.

The meeting will be in Circuit Court room #3. Those attending are asked to enter the building from the west side on 24th Avenue.

Common Cause is a non-partisan, non-profit citizens' lobby for honest and accountable government at the national, state and local levels. Common Cause uses the telephone and post office to make the members' views on issues known to government representatives.

The organization does not accept money from political parties, government grants, labor unions or other special interest groups. Its financial support comes entirely from the dues and contributions of the members, and is accountable only to them.

Speakers at tonight's meeting in Gulfport will include Glenda Hensley, executive director of Common Cause in Mississippi; membership chairman Luis Monterde, a former Cuban refugee; and state Sen. Vic Frankiewicz, a member of the organization. A question-and-answer session will follow their talks.

The public is invited to attend.

cles which Estess described as interchangeable rockets, which will bring this nation's launch ability into the next century. The project is a joint program between NASA and the U.S. Department of Defense (Air Force).

This program will require a $78 million Component Test Facility which is now under construction. Here scientists will test cryogenic turbopumps which pump liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen in the rocket engine of the NLS.

The fourth and last program is the National Aero-Space Plane, a single stage-to-orbit vehicle. Estess said the vehicle will have the ability to lift off either vertically or horizontally.

He commented the White House is supportive of the NLS and National Aero-Space Plane and expects these two programs to receive high priority considerations.

OTHER AGENCIES

Estess elaborated briefly on various other agencies housed at the Stennis facility which are presently benefiting from the scientific advancements of both NASA and Navy projects.

These included: —Center for Higher Learning, utilized by Mississippi State University, the University of Southern Mississippi, USM Center for Marine Services, the University of New Orleans and Pearl River Community College, all offering graduate and post-graduate opportunities;

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

Have you joined the legions of flounders along our beaches these balmy evenings, with light or lantern in hand, along with some sort of pole or spear, as they search out the wily denizens of the shallows along the shore?

As we drove home to The Pass along the beach road on a recent evening, after a laughter-filled enjoyment of a performance of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" at the Center Stage in Biloxi, we were cheered on our way by the myriad of lights flashing and flickering just above the waters in the shallows all along the way.

And, oh, how envious we were of the flounder-giggers, who would soon be enjoying that special treat, flounder fresh from the waters of the Gulf! We even saw several fires of optimistic souls, who obviously planned to cook their prizes right there and then!

It was the Indian tribes, already at home on the Coast, who taught the early settlers the art of floundering, or flounder-fishing, wading in the shallows armed with arrows or spears; and this is still a great sport for us these days, as well as a boost to the food budget in these inflationary times!

The flounder may not be a thing of beauty, but its sweet and firm white meat makes for ever-so-good eating. It's easy to cook, easy to stuff, easy to enjoy—just remember the cardinal rule of fish cookery: don't overcook it and thus ruin both texture and flavor.

Another rule: the less you do to fresh fish, the better. Save those fancy sauces for other times. One of the ways in which I like fresh flounder best is simply broiled briefly, just until it flakes to the tinge of a fork, then doused with melted butter and chopped fresh parsley, along with lemon slices or juice, with a splash of good white wine for good measure—and taste.

This is equally easy to cook on the grill, or in a hinged basket on the grill, or over a fire on the beach, as it is to cook inside the house in the broiler. For a real Gulf Coast treat, as popular in our restaurants as in our homes, try:

STUFFED FLOUNDER
4 medium-size flounders
1 stick butter or less, as needed
Pepper, cayenne, salt to your taste
1 cup fresh crabmeat
1 cup fresh shrimp, cooked and chopped
1/2 cup chopped celery
1/2 cup chopped green onions, tops included
1 clove garlic, minced
2 Tblsp. chopped fresh parsley
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 1/4 cups bread crumbs or cubes, approximately, as needed.

Saute the onion, celery and garlic in half of the butter, over a low fire. Add the bread, crabmeat, shrimp, parsley and egg, mixing well. Season as you like, and set aside.

Slit pockets in the flounders: split the thick or dark side of the fish lengthwise from head to tail, then crosswise down the middle, loosening the meat from the bone so as to form a "pocket" for the stuffing. Brush the inside of the pocket and the fish itself with a little melted butter and lemon juice, then stuff the pocket.

If you're broiling the flounder, place the stuffed fish in a pan with just enough water to cover the bottom. Broil 3 or 4 inches from the heat, until it flakes easily, basting often with the liquids which accumulate in the pan.

If you're baking the flounder, melt the remaining butter in a shallow baking pan, arrange the flounders in it, not overlapping, cover and bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes, or until it flakes, uncovering the pan for the last five minutes or so.

And, if the budget doesn't run to crabmeat or shrimp at this point, just devise, improvise, "make do!" Some cooks grind up a small amount of shrimp, mix into the bread, etc.—and the shrimp flavor is there. A chopped cucumber-and-bread stuffing is tasty, also. The other day, I had just a bit of boiled crawfish left over, not really enough to do anything with but too good to toss away; so, I peeled and chopped the tails, and made a tasty stuffing!

Contest seeks catfish recipes

Seasonality is the key to winning in a new Mississippi farm-raised catfish "Four Seasons Recipe Contest," sponsored by The Catfish Institute. The contest, open to the public, gives amateur chefs a chance to display their creative culinary talents.

Entrants are asked to submit an original, easy-to-prepare recipe featuring Mississippi farm-raised catfish as an ingredient. Each recipe should fit into one of four categories: spring, summer, winter or fall. Submissions will be judged according to seasonal suitability, taste, creativity, appearance and ease of preparation. Entry deadline is June 30.

Four winners, one from each category, will receive cash prizes of $1,000 each.

Recipes should be typed and include name, address, day and evening phone numbers, and indicate appropriate seasonal category.

Mail to: The Catfish Institute Recipe Contest, c/o Golin/Harris Communications, 666 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10017 or fax to: Colleen Weber (212) 697-3720.

Contestants may submit more than one recipe, but each recipe may be submitted for only one of the four categories. Recipe(s) must include ingredients and measurements, directions, approximate cooking time (if applicable) and suggested number of servings.

Home-grown tomatoes worth the wait

By Dr. Milo Burnham
Horticulturist
Mississippi Cooperative
Extension Service

Tomatoes remain the most popular garden vegetable. Where garden space is limited and when time or health won't permit much garden activity, people still make an effort to plant one or two tomato plants, even if they have to plant in a large pot.

By now the commercial tomatoes and the garden tomatoes have been planted and some gardeners may even be thinking ahead to which tomatoes they want to plant for the late summer and fall crop. But the task at hand is to take care of the plants that are in the ground.

Each year more and more of the tomato plants available for gardeners to plant are the short vined or "determinate" varieties such as sunny, celebrity, mountain pride and mountain delight. These plants produce a lot of branches, but the plants don't get much taller than about even when a plastic or organic mulch is used under the plants. Alternative methods of supporting tomato plants are in Mississippi Gardens

described in detail in the the Garden Tabloid, available at all Extension Service offices.

Pruning or removing tomato plant branches, often called suckers, is practiced by gardeners to varying degrees. Proper removal of the suckers results in larger and earlier ripening tomatoes, but fewer numbers than on non-pruned plants.

Total weight of the tomatoes produced on pruned and non-pruned plants may be about the same. Pruned plants yield less plant material that must be tied up or caged, and you get better coverage with your insect and disease control spray materials.

Tomato plants with a determinate type of growth aren't pruned as heavily as the indeterminate plants. Some gardeners remove suckers up only to the first bloom cluster on the determinate plants. Others leave the strong branch right below the first bloom cluster but remove all suckers below it.

Indeterminate plants for staking or caging are generally pruned to three or four branches, leaving the main stem, the strong sucker below the first bloom cluster and one or two others below that. After the main plant structure is selected, pruning of indeterminate plants continues throughout the growing season.

In all cases, when a small sucker is removed by breaking it off of the plant, the leaf associated with the sucker is not removed.

Diamondhead Fitness Trail

Dedication ceremonies include entertainment by 'Teardrop,' Jefferson Children's Chorus

The Diamondhead Community Association and the Diamondhead Performing Arts Society will bring an event-filled afternoon of entertainment to area residents on June 6 from 4 to 7:30.

The highlight of the day's activities will be the dedication of the new Diamondhead Fitness Trail.

Featured will be a performance by the award-winning Jefferson Children's Chorus under the direction of Marjorie Flanagan and Jan Esthus. The chorus consists of 75 boys and girls, ages nine through 15.

Also appearing will be "Teardrop the Clown," Ocean Springs own Linda Orrison, who recently appeared at the 1992 Easter White House Egg Roll. Between 4 and 5 p.m., ribbons of recognition will be awarded to those individuals who walk the trail's one-third mile distance.

Barbecue and beverages will be served on a cash basis. There will be no admission charge and no reservations are necessary.

The trail, upon completion, will be illuminated for night walkers. Other amenities will be a warming station, park benches and water fountain. Beautification with shrubbery native to Mississippi is planned for the area.

A substantial part of the cost for the trail was borne by the Diamondhead Community Association through various benefit events. The balance and maintenance will be sustained by the Diamondhead Property Owners Association.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

It's time to go fishin' y'all.

Ka-wa-bung-ga- umgawa, time to go back to Neanderthal days or was it Cro-magnon days? Or was it Homo-Erectus days? Anyway, time to go back to the olden days, and once again become spear chuckers because the word this week is that the flounders are back in the shallow waters around the seawall.

Also reports are coming in that flounders are being speared in Herron Bay at night. I forgot to say that the flounders that are being speared off of the seawall are being speared at night—also—in addition to—just like—whatever.

The best time is at night with the trusty old lantern to shed light on the subject.

However, it has been noticed, by more than one person, that if you try to use your lantern in water that is more than four feet over your head and you are holding the lantern in your hand, that the lantern tends to go out making it difficult to see anything.

This is why the recommended depth for spearing chucking flounders is no more than knee deep. Less if the water is cloudy. You just gotta see the bottom to have any chance at all of being able to spear a flat fish.

The interesting arsenal of spears that I observed this week indicates that maybe the olden days are not totally forgotten. Every conceivable pointed weapon, from "store bought" to tree branches with a nail in one end, were in evidence along the seawall.

The best time to go out flounder-dering, this past week, has been around 11 p.m.

While on the subject of night fishin', I have had several people ask me to suggest a safe place to fish at night. It seems that not everyone likes to brave the heat of the day or they (horrors) have to work during the day. A safe place is important to them and their families so they can enjoy some outdoor time together. This is especially true when they only have time at night.

Almost like the answer to a prayer, we are fortunate to have the Garfield Ladner public pier in Waveland. The Ladner pier is lighted all night and, most importantly, it has a ranger stationed at the entrance 24 hours a day. Your family and your person should feel safe at night time fishin' on the Ladner pier in Waveland. As a bonus, they are catching some nice, I mean really nice, sail top cats off of the pier.

For those who like larger fish, the sharks are biting again off of the pier.

The reds and the specks seem to be inside the bayous and canals all along the shore line. Shrimp are deep in the marsh because of the high salinity of the water, and it is gonna' take a lot of rain to freshen up the water in the marshes to drive the shrimp out into open water. What I am saying is, try fishin' inside of the bayous and canals before you try the open bays.

Live shrimp are finally available at both Bordages Fish Camp on Bayou Caddy and at LaFrance Fish Camp in Ansley.

Very few reports of catches of keeper trout have come in from the surf fishermen this past week. The few trout that were caught in the surf were caught on chartreuse beetles in tandem. The best time was reported to be about one-half hour after daybreak.

Crabs are running great in the bayous.

This week's wonderful wise words: Don't spear giant bluefin tuna sharks.

You musta' been out in the sun too long last week, turtle.

Gulf Coast Karate students qualify for national tourney

Special to the Echo
All 21 Gulf Coast Shotokan Karate Club students who competed in the Amateur Athletic Union (AAU) South Regional Karate Championship Tournament last month in Monroe, La., qualified for national competition.

The South Regional tournament, a three-state competition, is sanctioned by the AAU, a nationwide network of sports administration professionals. The AAU also sponsors such sports as baseball, basketball and soccer.

South State competitors who placed in each division qualified to advance to the AAU National competition in Cincinnati, Ohio, in July.

Members of Gulf Coast Karate train under Black Belt instructor Rannie Ladner, who said of the competition, "The students put in many hard hours of training to get ready for this tournament, and it was worth it since all the students qualified for national competition."

Gulf Coast Karate members who qualified to advance to the nationals include Wayde Ladner, Paul Lister, T.K. Hall, Eric Stevens, Cassie Hall, Geoffrey Claussen, Ray Torrence, Neil Norton, Brandon Weaver, Renee Weaver, Beckey Storey, Ronald Storey, Sherri Dubuison, Angie Dubuison, Kathryn Norton, Danny Lott, Carl Rogers, Lee Murphree, Bob Brundage, Roxy Aguiard and Ladner.

Ladner stated, "The art of Karate taught self-discipline, values and determination, and allows the individual students to become strong in spirit with dignity and purpose.

"Sportsmanship is stressed in every aspect of training. All aspects of students are being trained, not only the body, but the mind and spirit as well."

"Many people who join a karate club do so for the fitness that is achieved from the class workouts. Muscles tone and stamina improves, coordination and concentration also improve as students coordinate and focus body movement.

"Any type of regular exercise improves self-image and reduces stress."

"Individual students train in a team atmosphere and students support and encourage each other."

Ladner said one's mindset is very important in karate.

"In karate competition, it is most important to have a frame of mind that allows for effective action and reaction. Factors that contribute to this include a strong personal commitment, concentration, a serious attitude and respect for others involved. Because of the limitations of the body, techniques that depend solely on physical action will always be lacking — they will only be half techniques."

"This can be avoided by first summoning the required mental energy. When the mind has a clear idea of the task at hand and its commitment to the task, physical motions will be controlled and guided to their highest levels of proficiency."

This is the fifth consecutive year Ladner has trained students who have competed in a national level.

ARTIN' ABOUT

Best Little Whorehouse in Texas finishes this weekend on Bay Little Theatre stage

EDITOR'S NOTE: Artin' About provides information about fine and performing arts events. Submissions should be sent to Artin' About, Sea Coast Echo, P.O. Box 2009, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520. Notices will be edited and published on a space-available basis.

On stage:

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre finishes its production of The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas Friday and Saturday at 8:15 p.m. at the Playhouse on Boardman Avenue.

The play takes place on the outskirts of a small town in Texas where politicians, businessmen and the local football team enjoy the relaxed company of a bevy of beautiful "girls" carefully supervised by Miss Mona, who insists that her charges behave like ladies regardless of their profession.

Protected by the gutsy sheriff and tolerated by the community, Miss Mona's "House of Ill Repute" thrives, until a Bible-belt TV vigilante makes a statewide issue of the whorehouse and forces the reluctant, side-stepping governor to close it down.

Tickets are $7.50 at the door. No senior citizen discounts.

Kinetic Neo Skene Theater is holding auditions for Funny Girl May 31 at 2 p.m. at the Saenger Theatre in Biloxi.

The production needs dancers, singers, production volunteers and other characters. The three leading roles have been filled. For more information, call 435-0450.

'Wish you were here':

Bay Crafts owner Barry Pincus is offering postcards featuring local scenes, filling a need he said has been expressed by both tourists and local residents.

He has ordered a printing of 3,000 of the first card, a scene photographed by George Welman of Ansley. The scene, near the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club, includes a stretch of beach, a pier, the bay and marsh.

Pincus plans to add other postcards at a rate of one every two months until he has a dozen.

Pincus said he sold about 50 cards the first two days. He is selling them for 25 cents each, or five for $1.

He said he will offer them to the city and the Chamber of Commerce at a discount.

Talent wanted:

The Diamondhead Performing Arts Society will present the Greater Gulf Coast Talent Show Friday, June 26 at 8 p.m. at the Diamondhead Country Club. No entry fee.

Trophies, prizes and cash awards will be given. Categories include pre-teens, teenagers, adults and groups. All types of amateur talents are encouraged to come to the auditions beginning at 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. on June 12 and June 17 and at 6 to 9 p.m. on June 19 at the Diamondhead Community Center. Call Dick Alves at 255-7172 for details.

The Coastwide Talent Show is beginning registration for its August 2 production. The show is open to anyone who can sing, dance, model or play a musical instrument. For more information, call True Johnson at 864-2879 or Lucy McKay at 864-5049.

Congressional art:

Stacey Swanier of Pass Christian High School captured best of show honors in the recent 5th Congressional District art competition for high school students.

Swanier's work, along with that of other winning artists from among more than 100 submissions, will be displayed beginning this summer at the U.S. Capitol in a corridor dedicated to the artistic skills of young American artists. Also displayed will be the works of winning artists in other congressional districts.

The art contest is part of an Artistic Discovery, the eleventh annual competition initiated by members of the U.S. House of Representatives to recognize the creative talents of young Americans. The art department at USM conducted this year's judging of the district competition.

Gallery tour:

Mary Anderson Pickard will give a closing exhibition lecture at the Walter Anderson Museum of Art Saturday at 2 p.m.

Her gallery talk and presentation will combine scholarly and personal insights on her father's love of birds and his expression in art of that love.

More than 100 pieces relating to birds of the region are presented in watercolors, wood carvings, pen and ink drawings, pencil, pottery and linoleum block prints.

The coffee table book Walter Anderson Birds, with text by Mary Anderson Pickard and full color reproductions by Anderson, will be available at the Museum Store.

The gallery tour is included as part of the museum admission: $3 adults; $1 youth; and free to children under 6 and museum members. For more information, call 872-3164.

Olden collection:

The Mississippi Museum of Art/Gulf Coast will host the exhibit Treasures of Ancient Peru: The Sam Olden Collection June 12-September 17.

The collection consists primarily of ceramic vessels known as Huacos, effigy jars for burial with the dead. Also included are some gold pieces and jewelry.

Sam Olden, a Yazoo City native and world traveler who served with the U.S. Foreign Service, the Navy, the CIA and Mobil Oil Corp.'s International Division, spent 20 years collecting the pieces now on exhibit from the pre-Incan periods of several Peruvian cultures.

The exhibit will be on display at the MMA/GC, located in the Biloxi Cultural Center at 136 George E. Ohr Street in downtown Biloxi. The MMA/GC is open to the public free of charge Tuesday-Saturday, 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday 1-5 p.m. For more information, call 374-5547 or 1-800-423-4971.

Closed for renovation:

During June and July, the Little Theatre motif

Carol Young, left, president of the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre, holds a comedy/tragedy motif designed by artist Bob Songy. The motif was presented in appreciation from friends and patrons for the theatre's contributions to the community on May 22, opening night of the "Best Little Whorehouse" production. Artist Judith Anton constructed the work which will be matted and shadow box framed by the Frame Shoppe and Art Gallery in Waveland. (Echo staff photo by Jacqui Cochran)

East Galleries of the Mississippi Museum of Art in Jackson will be closed for renovation in preparation for the upcoming exhibition Dutch and Flemish 17th-Century Paintings: The Harold Samuel Collection.

The renovations will accommodate the large crowds anticipated in August and September, and will allow the museum to monitor even slight changes in temperature and humidity so that the fragile 17th-century paintings can be protected.

Though the East Galleries will be closed, the Impressions Gallery, Atrium Galleries, Palette Restaurant and Museum Sales Gallery will remain open to the public.

The museum is open Monday-Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

For more information about tours of Dutch and Flemish 17th-Century Paintings: The Harold Samuel Collection, call the MMA at 960-1515 or 1-800-423-4971.
